We stand at the Crossroads of life for many people

Sunday 15 in Ordinary Time - Year B

CHANGING FOR THE BETTER

We have heard Mark say in the gospel today: '... (the twelve apostles) set off to preach repentance' (6:12). What did the apostles mean and what did Jesus mean when they called on people to 'repent'? In a nutshell, they were asking people to completely change their lives. Right now let's explore some of what repentance involves.

Repentance and conversion go together. They are about change and transformation. Conversion is turning away from something else. For every person it involves turning away from how I live my life now to another way of living—a new, better, more genuine, more Christ-like way!

It happens when I repond to the gift of God to me, the gift of God's love, God's grace. It happens when I come to see and accept that God loves me with an infinite and unconditional love, a forgiving and everlasting love, a love that led his Son to stretch out his arms on the cross to embrace me, and a love that has been with me every step in y life's journey.

This love that God has for me is brilliantly illustrated in the famous story Jesus told of the lost son who runs away from his father and family and their love, and gets himself into one hell of a mess (Lk 15).

As it happened with the prodigal son, the beginning of the process of conversion is marked by a loss of tranquility, and by feelings of restlessness, dissatisfaction and disillusionment. This is necessary, for without unrest there is no need to feel change. Further along the path, the conversion requires time and effort and struggle to grow and mature. It requires rooting out old habits, bad habits, and establishing new habits, good habits. It requires working at treating others differently, and working at creating a different environment, a more peaceful, harmonious and caring atmosphere around us in which to live and work.

It requires admitting and facing painful facts about myself: I have done wrong, I have hurt others. I have let them down. I have deceived myself. I have flopped and failed again and again. It requires humbly admitting that I cannot change and become a better person without outside help, that I need to put my trust in the power and love of God to free, heal and change me. Only those who who have nothing can receive everything. The Word of God says so over and over again.

My conversion will be shown gradually in a change in my relationships—in how I relate to the members of my family, to my fellow parishioners, to the people I work with, to the people I pass in the street, to strangers, to the general public, to Jesus Christ in person, and to myself. My conversion will happen in the ways I begin to think about people and life, in the ways I feel about them, and in the ways I respond to them.

My conversion will happen too in my change of values, as I re-make my life-commitments in keeping with the best human values. These are not values of this world where everything revolves around competition and success. No—my new values will be the values of Jesus—truth, honesty, compassion, integrity, acceptance, affection, friendship, kindness, forgiveness, generosity, fairness, peace, patience, joy, fidelity and trust. I will remember that God does not ask me to be successful—for success in not a gospel value—but to be faithful, faithful always.

I will show my conversion by deliberately and consistently reaching out to the poor, the lost, the losers, and the broken. Was it not to them most of all that Jesus announced the coming of the Kingdom of God? Did he not say that it belonged to them? Did he not say both in word and action that the kingdom of God is above all for misfits, the 'uglies', the sinners, the tax-collectors, the lepers, the lonely and the prostitutes? Did he not demon strate over and over that the kingdom of God is a kingdom for the messy and the losers rather than for 'the beautiful people' - the rich and famous celebrities of the glossy magazines?

It cannot be stressed strongly enough that conversion is about turning away and turning to—turning away, on the one hand, from selfishness, sin and evil, as well as golden calves of money, prestige, status, power, and, on the other hand, turning to God, o Jesus Christ, and to our shared values as a church community—truth and integrity, goodness and love, justice and equality, peace and joy. Turning away and turning to, all through the transforming power of the Holy Spirit of God given to us with our baptism!

So, during the rest of our prayer today—with others and alone—let us ask God for the grace of conversion—for one another, for our church community, and for our society and its culture!

News from the Parish Team

Fr Erick CP will be away from the parish next week attending the annual Clergy Conference for the Sydney Archdiocese.

Sr Elena CP is currently in Rome for six weeks as a delegate to the Passionist Sisters' Chapter. We pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit on the Sisters' deliberations. (And hopefully at least, a little time for the Sisters to relax and enjoy the eternal city!) Sr Elena will return to the parish in early August.

NAIDOC Week—8-15 July 2018

“Because of her, we can!”

The “her” in this year's theme is a reference to the strong women in our lives—mothers, daughters, sisters, aunties, grandmothers—and also to Mary, Mother of God. Here in Australia, it also refers to our first Australian saint—St Mary of the Cross MacKillop who reminds us that “wherever we see a problem, do something about it.”. As NAIDOC 2018 comes to a close, we give thanks for these women and all the strong women in our lives who surround us with their love, their strength, and their care. May they continue to inspire us with their energy to follow in their footsteps in living the Gospel of Jesus Christ as we work for a world of safety, fairness and justice for all. .
