We stand at the Crossroads of life for many people

Sunday 18 in Ordinary Time - Year B

JESUS, OUR BREAD OF LIFE

'Food, glorious food. ...! Among the most popular shows on TV are those about food. 'Masterchef', 'My Kitchen Rules', and Jamie Oliver draw large TV audiences. Many more people than so-called 'foodies' are drawn to them. The sheer number of fans tells me that there is a widespread and ongoing fascination with food—getting it, cooking it and eating it. It's not that most of us live to eat. Rather, it's because we eat to live, and just sometimes because we love to eat, that such shows are appealing.

Over one hundred years ago, Nicolai Bardyaev, a Christian Russian philosopher, made this wise comment about bread: 'Bread for myself is a material matter; bread for other people is a spiritual matter.' I think that just about sums up the attitude of Jesus in his teaching today. Only the day before he has fed the people on the far side of the lake with more bread than they can eat. But they are not satisfied, for on the very next day they return to him at the base of Capernaum, expecting another generous hand-out. So he challenges them: 'You have seen' he says in effect, 'wonderful things. You have seen how the goodness of God enabled a big crowd to be fed. Your thoughts ought to have turned to God who did these things. Instead, all you are thinking about is yourselves, and filling your bellies with bread.'

His point was that they were interested only in physical satisfaction. On the famous ladder of human needs first identified by Abraham Maslow in 1943, they are clinging to the bottom rung of the ladder—bodily needs. But what about those higher needs higher up the ladder? How can a hearty meal and a full stomach replace eg. Belonging to others and being connected to others in loving relationships? Being approved, respected, and esteemed by others? Exploring, knowing and understanding the truth in facts and faith? Encountering and savouring order and beauty every where? And most of all realizing our potential to be everything we can be for the service of others and for a better world?

Most of all Jesus wants to lead these seekers (and ourselves too) to 'work for the food that endures for eternal life', for the bread that lasts and which God is offering. Jesus spells out just what food is. It's nothing less than a personal, interpersonal life-giving and everlasting relationship with himself. He sums this up in powerful words, and especially these:

1. 'This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom you sent.'
2. 'Very truly I tell you...the bread of God is that which comes down from heaven and gives life to the world.'
3. 'I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty.'

His first hearers eagerly ask for this bread—'always' they say—but they don't understand what this bread really is. Jesus, the man standing before them, is himself the bread. In the way he lives, loves and dies for them, they are meant to see the face of God, entering into an intimate relationship with them.

Surely this gospel speaks strongly to us as well. But it also reminds us that there is some difference between knowing Jesus personally and simply knowing about him. To know Jesus personally is to respond to his person and message, to share our lives with him, to follow him, and as a result, to change our lives and become better people, more human and humane people. This is the knowledge that involves an experience of his presence, friendship with him, trust and prayer.

But the knowledge that comes from an interpersonal relationship with him gives rise to a desire, and perhaps even a yearning and a hunger, to know more about him, to learn more about his beliefs, his

Values, and how he lived his life. Faith in him, then, is a matter of both head and heart. When we hear or read about him, we also expect to meet him in the voices we hear and in the pages we read. But we do not seek a Jesus hidden behind the texts but a Jesus shown to us inside the texts, and most especially in the selected Readings about him Sunday after Sunday in church.

But the challenge remains to keep discovering how this great man from the distant past is also in significant ways one of us, and therefore very real and relevant. So much so, that as the song from the stage show Godspell has it, a song that echoes the prayer of St Richard of Chichester, we would want to keep praying for three things—'to see him more clearly, love him more dearly, and follow him more nearly, day by day.'

Let's keep taking up the challenge!

THANK YOU to John, Oliver and Adrienne!

“On behalf of the Youth group, parents, and Parish Team, I offer thanks to John, our Youth Minister, and to Oliver, his assistant, for all the care and energy they put into our recent St Brigid's Youth Retreat. It takes vision and great faith and persistence to deliver an event like this in collaboration with such a broad group of stakeholders.

John & Oliver brought together a wonderful group of experienced leaders to run the weekend and also involved our own St Brigid's senior youth members, introducing them to retreat leadership. The weekend had special moments for everyone and the feedback has been positive, particularly in relation to Adoration on Saturday night, and the exuberant car-washing on Sunday morning!

I invite all of you to say Thank You to John and Oliver. Please also thank Adrienne Harverson who has given a lot of her time representing & organising the parents, and supporting John in the planning and actioning of the event.

We wish John ‘Happy Birthday’ for last Thursday. May God bless you with more energy as you guide the young into the deep love of God.”

Fr Erick CP
